1 In a "Rentall of Fewduties and Annuaall-rentis," payable to the magistrates and council of Glasgow, engrossed in a Diet Book of the Burgh Court (1657-9) there is a division headed "Stabilgrein" containing seven entries of sums due for tenements, land, barns, and a kiln, the first entry being "Item, William Dobbie, elder, for his tenement on the north syd of the vennell, 10 s." This shows that the community had lands in the Stabilgrieve. A tenement and yard there were conveyed to David Morrison and spouse in 1538 (protocol No. 1135).

2 The site here referred to, on the south side of "Rattounraw" and west side of the High Street, can be identified as part of that "burgage" which "Gilbertus de Camera," in his urgent necessity, and for his sustenance, sold to Nicholas Sprovel, in the year 1533. Immediately thereafter, the property, described as "lying within the burgh of Glasgow, in the wynd which is called Rattounraw, between the land of Sir Maurice Starne, chaplain, on the west, and the King's Street, which is called the Wynd, on the east," was purchased by the abbot and convent of the monastery of Paisley. A portion of the ground was feued to Patrick Glover, burgess of Glasgow, in 1413, for payment of 2s. 6d. yearly [Registrum de Passelet, pp. 382-3]; but the corner portion seems to have been retained by the abbey till about the time of the Reformation. In a fifteenth century rental of the abbey "Sir Patrick Glover" is entered as liable for the annualrent of 2s. 6d., while the remainder of the property, under the designation Monks' House (domus monachorum) in Glasgow, was either let to tenants or in the monks' own belonging to and occupied by James Neilson, citizen, lying on a fore

the "Munkthouse" (Munimenta Fratrum Predicatorum —Maitland Club, p. 176); and in 1458, a tenement on the south side or the Ratounraw is described as bounded by the tenement commonly called the "Munkhous" (Reg. Episc. Gls. No. 369). In a rental of 1525 the annual rent of 2s. 6d. is entered as payable by Thom Wakar and William Baxter; and "the hous at the Wyndheid" is mentioned, but no rent stated [Appx, at supra, p. civ.] On 26 February, 1554-5 the abbot and convent enclosed a piece of the ground to Quintia Hammul ton, and the northern boundary is then stated to be a not known, but it must have been disposed of not long afterwards, as it is apparently included in the property

1 The words in the MS. are "prope portam borealem qua iter ad brother croissis construct. apud castrum." "Mr. John Colquhoun, reector of Stobo," is witness to a

¹ On 25 May, 1513, Mr. Adam Colquhoun, rector of Stobo, was rentalled in the 33 s. 4d. land of "Woodsyde," vacant by the decease of Mr. Thomas Muirhead, his predecessor in the rectority of Stobo (Diocesan Registers, I, p. 48). On 20 December, 1515, the rental book records "Elizabeth Colquhoun rentellit in xxxviiis. iiijd. land off Woodsyde, post obitum Magni et Ado Colquhoun" (Ib. p. 74). It is stated by Sir William Fraser, in "The Chiefs of Colquhoun" (p. 309), that Elizabeth was the rector's daughter; and the entry in the rental book apparently means that she was to succeed to the lands on his death. Elizabeth Colquhoun married George Elphinstone, and on 28 August, 1534, he was conjoined "in rentale with his wef, Elizabeth Colquhoun, of twa merk land and half of the Wodesyd" (Ib. p. 104). On 7 March, 1535-6, George Elphinston, second son of the first George, then deceased, was, with consent of his elder brother, rentalled in the lands, "Besse Colquhoun, his moitlir, brawkand for hir tyne" (Ib. p. 163). The elder brother, likewise named George (in accordance with a practice not then uncommon) was rentalled in the lands of Gorbals in 1564 (Ib. p. 154; Protocols Nos. 185, 187, 490, 1466), and was feudally vested in both Gorbals and Woodsyde, under a charter granted by archbishop Boyd on 13 November, and confirmed by King James VI., 10 December, 1579 (Reg. Mag. Sig. iv. No. 2993). The rentaller of Woodsyde was, perhaps, the George Elphinstone whose name, in conjunction with that of Marion Alderston, his spouse, frequently occurs in the protocols. In the above protocol (No. 2633) Woodsyde was again given to a younger son, but it reverted, as before, to the elder. George Elphinstone, who granted the charter mentioned in the text, died shortly afterwards (see No. 2707), and was succeeded by his eldest son, who, as Sir George Elphinstone of Blythswood, got a crown charter of the combined lands of Blythwood, Woodsyde, and Gorbals, on 27 August, 1595 (see MS. protocol by Archibald Hegate, 9 February, 1595-6). At present, part of Woodsyde is included in the Kelvingrove Park, and other portions are occupied by buildings and streets, the original designation of the lands being commemorated by Woodside Crescent and Terrace.

1 Glasg. Chart. i. p. xxvi; ii. p. 446. By a contract, dated 14 May, 1577, entered into between the magistrates and council and Archibald Lyoe, then rentteller of a mill on the river Kelvin, he conveyed his right in that mill to the town, and, in return, he was infeft in the town mill on the Malyndinor in security of the yearly payment of certain bolls of grain during his lifetime, and after his decease, to his heirs, of 100 merks yearly, until lawful redemption by payment of 1000 merks. This is the wadset referred to in the text. A previous wadset over the town's mill is referred to in protocols Nos. 346 and 1067.

2 "Kilhill," on the east side of the Malyndinor burn. See protocols, Nos. 1855 and 1871.

3 On 3 October, 1509, David Cuningham, archdeacon of Argyle, provost of the collegiate church of Hamilton, and official of Glasg, founded a chaplainy in a church erected, on his charges, in the Gallowgait, beyond the Malindoner burn, and near the trees called St. Kentigern's; and he endowed the new foundation with various lands, and annual rents (Reg. Episc. Glasg. No. 481). This was the beginning of the church or chapel sometimes called the Little Church of St. Kentigern, and frequently referred to in the protocols. On 11 January,
(11) an annual rent of 40s., payable furth of a tenement belonging to James Tailzour, lying in the street leading from the South Port to the bridge, between the street on the north, and the burn of Malyndinor on the south; (12) an annual rent of 26s. 8d., payable furth of a tenement in the Bridgegait, belonging to John Bartoune, shoemaker; (13) an annual rent of 6s. 8d., payable furth of a tenement belonging to John Auldeyne, baker; and (14) an acre and a half of land adjacent to the Brunelands, held in feu of the rector of Glasgow. The properties and annual rents to remain vested in George Lyone and spouse till Archibald Lyoun (whose liferent of the whole was reserved) should, in his own person, redeem the same by payment of a vro noble. Sasine given by Robert Rowat, bailie, Witnesses: James Lyoun, Thomas Glen, David Glen, James Dalzel, Archibald Andisone, merchants, citizens, Alexander Baillie, Andrew Baillie, citizens, John Pattoune and Richard Tode, serjeants.

1504-5, when the erection was apparently being proceeded with, Coningham, acting as vicar general for archbishop Blaclander, then abroad, required Mr. John Gibson, rector of Rentfrew, as master of work of the church, to expend money and pay the expenses of small things about the church, as the previous masters of work had done (protocol No. 91 in Diocesan Registers). A chaplain, in succession to one who was deceased, was inducted on 24 September, 1513, by delivery of the keys of the church, the bell rope, book, chalice, and ornaments of the altar (ib. No. 653). Subsequent to the Reformation, the endowments were, along with other church property and revenues, conveyed by Queen Mary's charter to the magistrates and council, and were thereafter transferred to the college (see Rental in Munimenta Almæ Universitatis, i. p. 175). It is ascertained by the conveyance of 1505, afterwards referred to, that Archibald Lyon acquired the kirk and kirkyard by a feu-charter, and that charter was probably granted by the magistrates and council, as was done in the case of the collegiate church of St. Mary (protocol No. 1702), the chapel of St. Roche (No. 1674), and the church of St. Teno (No. 2462).

On 19 May, 1593, the church of Little St. Keutigern and grounds, which had been conveyed by Archibald Lyon to his daughter Marion, and her husband Donald Cunningham of Aikinhar, were sold by the latter to the town at the price of 200 merks Scots, with the privilege to the sellers of nominating two burgesses for admission. In the conveyance the property is described as "the chapell and hows callit St. Mounigois chalpanerie, with kirk yairde and pertinentis thairof, lyand in the east syde of the town of Glasgow, beyond the Gallowgate brig, betwixt the landis of Dowhill on the north and the he streit on the east partis"; and the transfer is stated to be made "to the effect that the same chapell, hous and yairde may stand and [be] convertit in to an hospital for the pair to be foundit be the saidis provest, baillies and counsale, and to na other wse in all tynes comyn." There were also sold to the town "the treis, both' gowand and cutit, abort and in the samcn, to be instantlie intrometitit with be the saidis provest, baillies and counsale to the use of the said kirk" (Original Conveyance, Inv. i. b. 22). If an hospital was actually fitted up it must soon have been abandoned, because, on 2 February, 1600, the town council directed "the hall materialis of stane, tynmer, and gowand treis of Lytill Sanct Mungo's Kirk" to be taken down and removed and used for the repair of the Trou Kirk, and the site to be freed to the highest offerer (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 202). The site, however, was not disposed of till 1754, when the council sold it for the erection of an inn, the famous "Saracen Head," well known in Glasgow annals. An absurd story, found in some Glasgow histories, to the effect that, through an act of vandalism on the part of the town council, the stones of the Bishop's castle were used in erecting the inn, seems to have originated in a mis-reading of the MS. council minute. What the town council did in the way of providing building material was to authorise the purchaser to use the stones of the adjoining East Port, then being removed as an obstruction to the thoroughfare (MS. Council Rec. xxvi. p. 400). Further particulars regarding St. Keutigern's Kirk will be found in Glasgow Charters, i. pp. lix., cviii., dixii.; ii. p. 454, No. 106.

\(^1\) The property specified in No. 2706 appears to form the site of an ancient chapel adjoining the tolbooth, on the north side of the Trongait. This chapel is referred to in record as early as the year 1293 (Glas. Chart. ii. p. 29; protocol No. 1061, and footnote), and is likewise noticed in a document, dated 28 October, 1426 (Liber Coll. Nostre Domine, etc., p. 214), and in another, dated 16 June, 1457 (Reg. Episc. Glasg. No. 440). The chapel seems to have been acquired by the collegiate church of St. Mary and St. Anne, founded by James Houstoun, on the south side of the Trongate, as on 10 February, 1555-6, Sir Christopher Knox, chaplain and prebendary in the collegiate church, with consent of the provost and other prebendaries, and also with consent of the magistrates and council (patrons of the church), and the archbishop, granted in feu-farm to George Herbertsonne and Margaret Mure, spouses, a ruinous tenement, otherwise called the chapel, on the north side of the street of St. Tenew, situated between the tolbooth of the city, the tenement sometime of David Pollok, then of David Lindsay, and the tenement of James Ischaw and John Drippis. ¹ For the reason here stated, the protocols in Archibald Hegate's first book end with No. 2740. On four of the remaining leaves in the book, there has been collected some extraneous matter, of which particulars will be found in the Preface to last volume. Since that volume was issued, Mr. William Young, artist, who had noticed the sonnet printed on page xix., has shown the editor an edition of "The Cherrie and the Sclar," and other poems, by Captain Alexander Montgomery, printed at Glasgow, in 1712, by Robert Sanders. At the beginning of the book is the sonnet referred to, and there called "A Sweet Sonnet to the Blessed Trinitie: by C. A. M." The author is thus identified as a west-country bard of considerable repute, whose works have often been printed. An edition of Montgomery's poems was issued by the Scottish Text Society in 1887. The poet is said to have been a son of the laird of Hazelhead, in Ayrshire, whose family at one time owned property in Glasgow, as shown by protocols Nos. 4, 1578, and 2742.

In connection with the transaction narrated in No. 1491, the nature of the jurisdiction exercised by the knights and their officials over temple lands receives illustration from an entry in the Glasgow Records. David Moresoun and spouse, the owners of the Stockwell tenement, had granted to Thomas Huncuson an annualrent of 5 merks, payable furth of the property, and this annualrent having fallen into arrear, Huncuson sued Moresoun in the burgh court for payment. This was agreed to, security was given for justice being done, and a court was appointed to be held by the temple bailie, in David Moresoun's house, for decision of the claim (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 45, 46). Various interesting particulars regarding the Knights of St. John and their lands in Scotland will be found in a paper by Mr. John Edwards, published in the Transactions of the Glasgow Archaeological Society, vol. iii. pp. 300-30.

1 "Australen," as applied to the market cross, has not been noticed in any previous protocol, and in this case the word has probably been inserted through inadvertency. This theory is wholly unsupported by extant historical documents, all of which indicate that the market cross, from the first, was placed in the position which it so long occupied at the foot of the High Street.

Milne appears to have attained financial success, as in 1588-9, he invested 1000 merks in the purchase of lands from the town (ib. p. 130). For some reason, possibly in connection with the transaction referred to, Milne, in the following year, quarrelled with the town authorities, called the bailies traitors and deceivers, and slanderously aluded to "the hungrie town of Glasgow." As a punishment for "his falt and grit sclander" the town council ordered him to appear at the cross and publicly confess his transgression, stopped his pension for a year, and resolved that any repetition of the offence should be visited with its permanent withdrawal (ib. pp. 138-9). Andrew Mill or Mylne, whose name appears on the roll of members of the Faculty of Physicians, instituted in 1590, is supposed to have been a son of Thomas Milne (Duncan's "Memorials of the Faculty," p. 233). 2 The “common” referred to in No. 2886 consisted of pând laying along the north bank of the river, reserved for the use of the inhabitants in connection with the river traffic. A market seems at one time to have been held there; but in 1596 the water sergeant was instructed to cause all the boats coming to the Broomielaw to proceed to the bridge and to hold the market there (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 180). Transferred to the bridge the market was within easier reach of the town’s folk, and probably better subject to the control of the magistrates, especially with regard to the collection of custom dues. In 1600, two inhabitants of Saltcoats, whose sails and boat gear the customs’ tacksmen had seized at the Broomielaw, objected to the jurisdiction of the provost and bailies; and at the request of the town council the articles were restored to the objectors on their finding security to appear before competent judges (ib. p. 299).

1 Davill means a portion, and the prefix denotes the running or passing over one portion into another. Land possessed in detached portions, but in the same croft, was accordingly described as being in rin-davill. When these portions were in rigs or ridges, run-rig, was the term used. Thus, in Lanark, it was resolved that the "town maire be delt among the burgesses... rinadavill among thanim," beginning at a certain mark and thence proceeding "akerdaill about" till the whole was divided (Lanark Rec. p. 110).

1 The visitation of the "pest" in 1558 has been referred to in protocol No. 2799. There is a blank in the council records from 27 April, 1586, till 22 October, 1588, and accordingly the protocol No. 2926, which explains how the money raised to meet the extra expenditure occasioned by the pest was repaid, supplies information not otherwise procurable. When the records resume, in 1588, there is evidence that the town was again troubled with the epidemic, and for raising money at that time it was found necessary to sell part of the common lands (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 118-20).

In protocol No. 2799 reference was made to sasine being given on the public street because access could not be had to the property on account of the pest. John Wilson, the owner of the property, was at that time kept in seclusion, as appears from an entry in the MS. Council Records, dated 9 December, 1585: "In presers of John Grahame, bailie, coupierit John Wil-soun, peuterer, burges of Glasgw, and becaus that the said John wes encloseth with his wyf and famelie in his ain hous, as suspsect of the pest, and mycht nocht, be his awin deid and resignation, (infelt) Mergrat Wilsoun, his dochter, in all and haill his faire tenement, heycht and laicht, with the pertinentis, lyand upone the north syde of the streit callit the Gallowgait. . . . 1 The division of common lands referred to in Nos. 2944 and 2948 appears to be that described in a letter dated 6 April, 1569, written by William Walker, steward to archbishop Betoun, in which he tells his master that "at the borrow muir of Glasg, on the south syde of the town, and als Garnkadhill on the north part of the town, as distribut be provest, bailies and community of the town to the inhabitars thereof, every ane his awin portioun conform to his degré" (Macgeorge's Old Glasgow (1880), p. 177. See also protocol No. 1606 and foot note). Previous to 1569, Garnkadhill appears to have been possessed by the inhabitants as common property, and they must then have considered that it would be more advantageous to have the land parcelled off and converted into individual holdings. The council records for that period are wanting, and accordingly it is all the more fortunate that Walker's letter and the protocols have preserved evidence of the division.

\textsuperscript{1} The Herbertsons appear in the protocols as owners of land in Dowhill as early as 1535 (see No. 1253). \textit{Kind draft} has been explained in footnote to No. 2999.

\textsuperscript{2} As narrated in protocol No. 1734, the subdean's manse was acquired by Mr. David Cunningham and Katherine Wallace, his spouse, in the year 1570-1. Cunningham held the subdeanery for a few years previous to 1577 when he was appointed bishop of Aberdeen (see footnote to protocol No. 842). The above protocol (No. 2996) shows that the right in the manse transferred by Archibald Betoun to Jedeon Murray in 1582 (see protocol No. 2433) consisted of a wadset or security for borrowed money. It is probable that after redemption of the wadset the bishop disposed of the property in the manner intended to be set forth in the next protocol (No. 2997), which, however, has not been completed. The draft of a feu charter (likewise incomplete), of which an abstract is printed in the Appendix (No. 5091), indicates that the property was conveyed, or intended to be conveyed, to Margaret Boyd in liferent.

"Finito libro; sit laus et gloria Christo Et tribuenda Uni gloria summa Deo."

A. Hevay.

The book is finished; praise and glory be given to Christ, and the highest glory to the one God.

There is likewise this prayer: "The Lord hait mercie upone me and forgif me my sins and iniquiteis that I hait committit against the. So be it."

From the other writing on the leaf the following memoranda may be quoted:

A mutilated scrap bears reference to the payment of 5s. for "wyne gevin" to some person or persons and "other nobill men . . . as Sir William Stewart . . ." Owing to some of the papers having been cut at the edges, words in many cases are wanting or incomplete. ¹ The hammermen, whose craft included blacksmiths, goldsmiths, loriners (i.e., makers of bits, spurs, &c.), saddlers, buckle-makers, armourers, and others, were incorporated by a seal of cause granted by the magistrates, with consent of the archbishop of Glasgow, on 11 October, 1556 (Glasg. Chart., i.; Abstract, p. 15, No. 316).

² These twenty names are in one column, and the four which follow begin at the top of the page in a second column. At the foot of the first column the paper is torn, with the loss of apparently two and perhaps more names. A list of hammermen made up in 1605 consisted of twenty-nine names. A few of these names are identical with those in the above list, and they include Allane Clark, perhaps the hammerman whose surname has disappeared. (See list in Crawford’s History of the Trades House, p. 54).
